

Preparing for A Level Maths

We are in, as we've heard "unprecedented times" but your A Level studies are waiting ... just round the corner.

Keeping your maths skills up-to-date is important to ensure a great start to Y12.

- For some of you, this will be all about practising the skills you have already learned
- Others will want to strengthen some of those topics that you didn't really get first time round
- Some of you will want to learn some stuff you just haven't covered yet

Here are a few places to get help, support and instruction...

MyMaths MyMaths has a section in A Level called "Bridging from GCSE". 27 worksheets which focus on topics some of which will be new. Each has a lesson and a worksheet <ul style="list-style-type: none">• have a go at the worksheet• if too difficult, do the lesson• repeat the worksheet You always look at the GCSE sheets as well. Log into your own accounts – details on Brightspace. 	Kerboodle You still have access to the GCSE textbook. You also have access to the Homework books which we did not use. A good use of this would be to work through the Higher homework book AFTER checking the topics that are most pertinent to A Level. Log into your own accounts – details on Brightspace.
Induction Booklet Attached to Brightspace is a booklet created by one of the major awarding bodies. There is some useful advice in this booklet which highlights the expectations of an A Level maths student. Bridging the Gap between GCSE and A Level Maths	Published Resources CGP: Head Start to A Level Maths  Collins: Challenging Mathematics: Bridging GCSE and A Level Maths  Collins: Bridging GCSE & A Level Maths These two books could be useful but you DO NOT NEED to buy them, the other resources will work just as well.
